We are slowing the pace for the summer period and plan to reopen our space for September.

In response to recent waves of denunciations, we are hosting a community discussion on abuses of power in Quebec arts organizations, in collaboration with other feminist centres in Montreal. See you on Monday, August 10, from 4 to 6 pm. More details to follow. To register, contact ateliers@studioxx.org.

In the meantime, we continue to publish anti-racism resources from our translation marathon: follow us on Instagram to make sure you don't miss anything! We are still looking for proofreaders, if you are interested contact us at communications@studioxx.org.

Before the summer closure, we are launching two Stay-at-Home activities inspired by the archives of our online exhibition Some Ellipses.

EDUCATIONAL ACTIVITIES

FROM OUR FILES #5 – Using the Black Quantum Futurism Collective's project Black Womxn Temporal Portal as a guide, explore your history and gather records of it to carry with you into the future.

NEWS

We are pleased to be community partners for the next edition of the Vector Festival! InterAccess is thrilled to announce that its annual celebration of digital and game art, Vector Festival, will be presented online for the first time in the festival's eight-year history.

From July 16-23 Vector Festival 2020: Online Edition, curated by Katie Micak and Martin Zeilinger, will present the work of more than 60 artists in a dynamic range of virtual exhibitions, performances, panels, and workshops. The festival explores experiences of isolation, distanced interaction, virtual togetherness, digital art making and curation, and emerging forms of community, solidarity, and care. Take a look at the incredible line up!

Follow them on Twitter, Facebook, Instagram, and subscribe to their Newsletter to learn more about the festival as well as the different events, panels, and workshops offered!
